And hearts resolved, and hands prepar'd, The blessings they enjoy to guard. Loch Lomond has several tributaries, the principal of which are the Fruin, Gudrick, Douglas, Luss, Finlass, Glenfalloch, and Inveruglass. The trout in all these streams run very small, though numerous. Anything in the shape and size of a fly will tempt them. Ten or twelve dozen of trout may be taken out of any of these feeders, in a very short space of time. To ramble on their banks is most delightful. The scenery in every direction is picturesque and imposing. Should the angler feel disposed, a visit to the lofty Ben Lomond will afford him inexpressible delight. In the immediate vicinity, a few lines were written on a pane of glass, in an inn, which are very descriptive, both of the mountain itself and the best mode of ascending it. Stranger, if o'er this pane of glass perchance, Thy roving eye should cast a casual glance; If taste for grandeur and the dread sublime Prompt thee Ben Lomonds fearful height to climb, Here gaze attention; nor with scorn refuse The friendly rhymings of a tavern muse. For thee that muse this rude inscription plannd, Prompted for thee her humble poets hand. Heed thou the poet; he thy steps shall lead Safe o'er yon towering hills aspiring head. Attentive, then, to this informing lay, Read how he dictates as he points the way. Trust not at first a quick advent rous pace, Six miles...
